

EUROPE WATCHES BULGARIAN ARMY WITH JEALOUS EYES

EVERY VICTORY OF THE ALLIES MEANS MORE COMPLICATION FOR POWERS.

ARE READY TO ACT

Nations Prepared to Take Radical Action to Protect Their Interests in Turkey.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, Nov. 11.—The situation at Constantinople is described by the Matin correspondent here. He says the British cruiser Weymouth is in direct wireless communication with the station at Poldhu, Wales, and receives daily the latest political, financial and sporting news. The crews of the foreign warships are now allowed ashore and stroll along the streets without exciting much attention from the natives.

At Adrianople. The accurate fire of the Bulgarian big guns began to tell at 10 o'clock in the morning when the guns in the fort on Mount Karel began to slacken in their reply. The fort had been swept by heavy storm of shells for several hours.

At about noon the Bulgarian colors fluttered up over the fort of Kataltepe, but Papaztepe still held out. The Bulgarian troops were divided into three columns which made very slow progress and for a long time the fortunes of the day seemed uncertain. Nightfall found the Turks and Bulgarians still fighting.

Fierce Fighting. The cannon and rifle fire which had been slackening, at once became more brisk, while above the combatants the searchlights flashed and whirled their intense rays around in which little balls of white smoke caused by the bursting of shrapnel floated like flies in a sunbeam, making even deeper the surrounding blackness which was punctuated here and there by flashes from the muzzles of cannons.

The roar of the siege and field guns dominated the rattling of the rifle volleys, and the screaming of shells as they hurled through the air. Abruptly the searchlights were extinguished at about 11 o'clock at night and the Bulgarian infantry began to storm the fort at the point of the bayonet. Shortly before midnight they had become masters of the position and the Turks were in flight. They left dead and dying by hundreds on the field.

The fort on Papaztepe is one of the most important features of the defenses of Adrianople.

Important Move. Vienna, Nov. 11.—Symptoms that important decisions in connection with the Balkan situation are under consideration in Austria-Hungary are seen in the fact of the frequent audiences between Count von Berchtold, the Austrian foreign minister, and Emperor Francis Joseph, who has several times conferred with the war minister and the chief of the general staff of the Austro-Hungarian army.

Heir Apparent. To these significant occurrences are added the arrival at Budapest of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, the heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne, and his forthcoming visit to the German emperor, as well as yesterday's conference between the president of the Bulgarian chamber of deputies and Count von Berchtold, and subsequently with the German ambassador at Vienna.

Face Crisis. London, Eng., Nov. 11.—Europe is facing one of the most critical weeks in her history. It may end in a war in which the whole of Europe will be involved, or it may be remembered as a week in which diplomacy succeeded in solving problems that appeared insoluble to many. The Bulgarian army is on the point of entering Constantinople, and this will be resented by Russia. At the same time the Turkish capital is threatened with massacre from within.

Graphic Story. Paris, Nov. 11.—A graphic description of the storming by the Bulgarians of the two Turkish forts at Kataltepe and Papaztepe, in the outward line of fortifications around Adrianople, was forwarded by a correspondent of the Matin. He declares that their captures seals the doom of the Turkish stronghold. The operations began at daybreak on Thursday.

Following their usual brilliant successful tactics the Bulgarian infantry advanced in the direction of the fort under cover of a murderous fire of shrapnel. The Turkish troops sallied out from the forts to deliver a counter-attack.

It was then the turn of the Bulgarian siege artillery from every point on the surrounding hills rained a terrific hail of projectiles on the Turkish troops. Every member saw fresh companies of Turks marching out from the city and the forts toward the Bulgarians who continued impetuously to draw their lines closer around the forts.

Tells of Battle. Adrianople, Nov. 9, 3:45 by direct route via Odessa, Russia.—The bombardment of this city by the Bulgarians began again on Friday and continued today from the south and west. In the afternoon it stopped and Shukri Pasha the military commander had placards posted all over the city announcing the victory of the garrison which had repulsed the Bulgarian attacking force around Maras and had driven the besiegers a considerable distance into the surrounding country.

This is the first dispatch sent by any correspondent with the besieged Turkish garrison of Adrianople.

Much Pressure. London, Nov. 11.—All the diplomatic pressure will be exerted at Vienna, Belgrade and St. Petersburg to induce the adoption of conciliatory policies at what is regarded as this critical moment for European peace. The suggestion by the British premier, Mr. Asquith, that all specific questions such as the distribution of ports on the Adriatic sea should be postponed, finds great favor in France where it is thought that if such subsidiary problems cannot be regulated in the future the danger of a European conflict will pass away.

On the other side of the Balkan peninsula there is an acute conflict between the aims of Austria-Hungary and Serbia which, if it is not arranged, might start a general European outbreak. The most hopeful sign at the present moment is the fact that moderating influences are being brought to bear by Germany.

Enter Saloniki. Athens, Nov. 11.—A force of 15,000 Greek soldiers has entered Saloniki, according to wireless messages from that city, received here today. The remainder of the Greek army is encamped outside the fortress awaiting the surrender of the Turkish forces. Many Turkish families are leaving the city.

To Help America. Paris, Nov. 11.—The European powers most intimately concerned in the Balkan situation, have undertaken to extend protection to Americans in Turkey.

FOURTEEN KILLED, MANY INJURED IN EXCURSION WRECK

Burning of Five Coaches Adds to Horror of Wreck When Freight Train Crashed into Southern Excursion Train.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New Orleans, La., Nov. 11.—Fourteen persons are believed to have been killed and possibly ninety injured in a wreck on the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley railroad near Montz, La., 27 miles north of this city shortly after midnight when a through freight train crashed into the rear of an excursion train of ten coaches.

Five of the coaches on the passenger train were burned and it is believed many of the wreck victims were cremated. Of the 13 bodies recovered up to nine o'clock this forenoon, nine were negroes and four white persons. The majority of the injured, it is said, are white. Relief trains were sent from New Orleans and Baton Rouge. The dead and the most seriously hurt among the whites were brought to New Orleans.

MAY SOLVE MYSTERY OF HEADLESS WOMAN

Trial of Henri Deslovers, Begun in Superior Court, Expected to Untangle Strange Murder.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Providence, R. I., Nov. 11.—The trial of Henri Deslovers which was begun in the superior court here today, the authorities hope to solve the mystery of the "headless woman" murder which has remained unsolved for nearly six months. On June 25 last some workmen discovered the headless body of a woman tied with rope and weighted with rocks floating in the Blackstone river near Woonsocket. Every effort to find the missing head, without which positive identification was almost impossible, proved futile. Investigation led to the conclusion that the body was that of Angelo Delmarlo, who had disappeared mysteriously shortly before the nude body was found floating in the river. As a result of these investigations the man Deslovers, a Franco-Belgian yarn spinner with whom the Delmarlo woman lived, was taken into custody a few days after the finding of the body. He pleaded not guilty, but at a hearing on July 27, he was held without bail for trial.

It was the supposition of the police that the murder of the woman had been committed somewhere in Woonsocket and the dismembered remains carried to the river and sunk. But the mystery as to the place of the crime remains as dark as that relating to the disposition of the woman's head. So far as is known the only tangible evidence connecting Deslovers with the murder is that he was seen to be walking toward the river with the woman on the night that she is supposed to have met her death.

Detectives specially employed by Governor Pether to work on the case recently arrested Mr. and Mrs. Desre Capaert, who lived in the Deslovers' home at the time of the disappearance of Mrs. Delmarlo. Both protest their innocence, declaring that they know absolutely nothing of the crime or of the movements of the woman before she left her home.

MAKES STATEMENT AS TO ELECTIONS

Gov. McGovern Highly Pleased With Endorsement of Himself And Progressive Cause in State.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 11.—Governor McGovern today issued the following statement bearing upon the recent election in part as follows: "The Wisconsin landslide has remade the political map of the country in state as well as in national affairs. So far as I know Wisconsin will be the only state with a progressive republican administration."

The outcome demonstrated the firm hold the progressive movement has upon the voters of Wisconsin. The time was bound to come when it would emerge from its initial state to meet the challenge to justify itself by results. Under most adverse circumstances for which it was in no way responsible this has now been done. I am glad the test was made when it did and I esteem it a very high honor indeed again to be called by the people of Wisconsin to assist in continuing the good work.

Throughout the campaign, Senator La Follette, while commending all my official acts, daily made charges against me of disloyalty at the Chicago convention and of the betrayal of his candidacy for the presidency.

These misconceived charges and malicious insinuations based upon them were reiterated again and again in the columns of a hostile press and democratic posters and from the platform at democratic meetings. It is to be deplored that the senator pursued this course as there was no excuse or justification for it.

That there is no truth whatever in the accusations he made is well known to most people who attended the Chicago convention and will be plainly shown to all at the proper time. Upon public grounds I deeply regret that I am forced to repel these attacks or that there should be any controversy whatever between Senator La Follette and myself; but I cannot remain silent in the face of the charges he has made against me."

Trevelyan and several associates at New York are under court order to appear here this week as defendants in the cases brought against them by the Federal Government for the cancellation of patents to valuable coal lands in the Big Horn country. The cases involve 9,500 acres of land and have been appraised by government experts at $1,500,000. It is alleged that the lands were filed upon by dummy entrymen for the benefit of coal companies controlled by the defendants.

CHURCHES COMPETE, WILSON MEMBERSHIP

President-Elect Has Not Decided Which Presbyterian Church He Will Join in Washington.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 11.—President-elect Woodrow Wilson has not decided which one of the Presbyterian churches in Washington, he will join. Both the new president and vice president are Presbyterians.

"I'm glad there are enough churches to go around," said the president-elect today with a smile when he was told of the rivalry that had arisen among the churches. The procession of automobiles and carriages bringing tourists and callers down Cleveland lane to the Wilson bungalow has made the hitherto unused road quite a thoroughfare. The hack men of town have profited greatly, but none so much as Charlie Guinn, liverman of many years who drove enough hacks to procure three automobiles and now has a monopoly on the "for hire" machines of the town. Guinn has driven Woodrow Wilson for nearly 15 years and "all the time I've driven him as professor in the university, as president of it, as governor and as a president-elect, he's always been mighty nice to me." The president-elect has a number of requests for speaking engagements.

Campbell on the charge of encouraging postoffice employees to engage actively in politics was scheduled to begin today before the federal civil service commission. M'MANIGAL'S STORY IS CONTINUED TODAY

Confessed Dynamiter Tells of Work at Kansas City, Peoria and Other Points at Today's Session.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Indianapolis, Nov. 11.—Ortie E. McManigal's confession on the witness stand at the "dynamite conspiracy" case was expected today to reveal his experience at an explosion which he says he caused at Peoria, Ill., and points west of the Mississippi river. An explosion at Kansas City, Mo., on August 23, 1910, the government alleges played an important part in connection with the charges that forty-five men now on trial engaged in illegal interstate shipment of explosives while preparing to blow up a bridge across the Missouri river at Kansas City. McManigal said he had explosives in a swamp near the river while he returned to the city to purchase some part of the bomb which would not work. On his return he failed to locate the explosive which later was recovered by local authorities and turned over to the government. McManigal, however, was able to cause the explosion.

About that time the government asserts James E. McNamara stopped off in Kansas City and in the presence of W. Bert Brown, business agent of an iron workers' union, sought to induce a "citizen" to join the dynamiting crew. McNamara is charged to tell the citizen of the plot to "clean up" Los Angeles, and adding there was "plenty of money to pay for the expense of doing it."

He was unarmed and will be held for examination. The prisoner told the police he had tried to see Secretary Knox of the state department and James Bryce, the British ambassador.

PROGRESSIVE HOLD ON ASSEMBLY WEAK?

Politicians Believe Enough Conservative Republicans are Elected to Check Complete Control.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 11.—While the republicans have a voting majority of three or four votes in the next Wisconsin assembly, astute politicians believe that there are enough of the conservative members to jeopardize the reorganization of the House on an entire progressive basis. Although complete returns are not yet in, the present indications are that twelve conservative republicans have been elected. This may permit a combination being made between the latter and the democrats for the control of the assembly. Should such a move be made, it is said that the socialists will combine with the progressive republicans. There are six socialist members.

Although the candidacies of three men—Ray J. Nye of Superior, Merlín Hull of Black River Falls, and Thomas J. Mahon of Eland, have practically been announced, a political lineup is being formed which is expected to sidetrack all these candidates and to spring a darkhorse. In the next legislature will sit several men of long business training who, although not looked upon as parliamentarians, are considered good available timber for the speakership. Only a few times has the Wisconsin assembly elected a speaker with no previous membership in the legislature. One such example was E. G. Ryan of Racine county, later chief justice of the Wisconsin supreme court.

Thomas J. Mahon is making his campaign for speaker upon the Bull Moose platform. He claims that Gov. McGovern could not have been re-elected if it had not been for his espousal of the Bull Moose cause. Ray Nye is forcing to the front as a feature of his platform a business administration by the legislature. He says he favors progressive legislation but believes the next legislature can complete its work in much less time than did the last five sessions. Merlín Hull, a champion of the common schools at the last two sessions, looks up now as a speaker-ship possibility because the most effective legislation at the coming session will, he believes, be in the interest of the common schools, in line with the republican platform.

MILLIONAIRE'S WILL CONTESTED BY A SON

Contest Over Will of Frank H. Holyoke of Los Angeles, Comes Before Court for Trial.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 11.—The contest over the will of Frank H. Holyoke, involving an estate estimated at $1,000,000 and with ramifications extending from Maine to California, came up in court here today for trial. The present contest, which follows a similar legal battle already on in the courts of Maine, was brought by a son of the deceased millionaire, Rev. Sydney A. Holyoke, whose home is in Milwaukee.

Frank H. Holyoke was a wealthy lumberman of Bangor, Me. He came to California for his health and died at Pasadena a year ago last October. In his will he cut off the widow with $1000 and gave each of his two sons $100. Both sons had had little to do with their father for several years. When he made his will, the lumberman charged his two sons with lack of filial devotion and justified his treatment of his wife by the statement that he had already effected a settlement with her under the terms of which she was to receive a certain property in satisfaction of all claims against his estate. The entire estate, with the exception of $50,000 bequeathed to Bangor philanthropies, was left to two nieces, Madeline and Marjorie Holyoke of Bangor.

In his notice of contest, the Rev. Sydney Holyoke alleges that the will was not signed by his father, and that it was dictated by "certain designing persons residing at Pasadena" while his father was mentally unbalanced.

ROCK COUNTY BOY IS FIGHTING FOR SEAT

CHARLES W. STARK, JR., SEEKS TO HAVE ELECTION AS STATE SENATOR CONFIRMED.

NAME WAS ON BALLOTS

Strange Mix Up In Milwaukee County Politics Brings About Legal Tangle For Coming Legislature.

Whether Charles W. Stark, Jr., a former Rock county resident, son of Charles Stark, an old time resident of Rock county living at Shopiere and a brother in law of Charles Weirick, is to be the next state senator from the Ninth senatorial district of Wisconsin, is a question that may go into courts to be settled. At any rate Mr. Stark who is practicing law in Milwaukee, was elected and it will prove a knotty problem for the legislature to solve.

The legislation of 1913 may have the task of reapportioning the districts of the state. Whether it does or not will depend on what is done in the matter of a representative from the Ninth senatorial district which comprises the First, Second, Third and Fourth wards of Milwaukee.

The name of Charles W. Stark, Jr., was placed on the machines in the recent election by order of the court, as candidate for senator from this district. No notice of an election in the Ninth district had been sent out by the secretary of state, as only senators in even numbered districts were to be elected this year under the law which provided for election in the even numbered districts at one election and those in the odd numbered districts at the succeeding election, thus alternating at each general election.

District Not Represented. Under the apportionment of 1911 the Ninth district was left without a senator residing in the district. When the matter of apportionment was up before the legislature it was held by those having charge of the apportionment bill that Senator George J. Weigle of the Fifth district, which formerly included the wards now in the Ninth district, with the exception of the First Ward could represent these wards until the expiration of this term.

Friends of Mr. Stark held that Senator Weigle could not represent the district, under the constitution, which provides that a member of the legislature must be a qualified elector in the district from which he is chosen. Therefore court proceedings were resorted to in order to get Mr. Stark's name on the machines. How many votes were cast for him is not known as no returns were made of the vote of the blanks sent to police headquarters on election night. Whether he received any votes and if he did how many were cast for him will not be known until the county board of canvassers has completed its work, which will not be for a week or more.

OWNER OF SOCIALIST PAPER ENDED LIFE

J. A. Wayland, Owner of "Appeal to Reason," Committed Suicide Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Girard, Kansas, Nov. 11.—J. A. Wayland, founder and owner of the Appeal to Reason, a socialist weekly newspaper, published here, shot and killed himself in his home in Girard early today. Mr. Wayland was unconscious when found by his housekeeper shortly after midnight. He died a few minutes later. He had fired a bullet into his mouth, muffled the sound in the bed clothes. Between the leaves of a book lying on the bed the following note was found:

"The struggle under the competitive system isn't worth the effort; let it pass."

Friends of Mr. Wayland attribute his act to despondency over the death of his wife who was killed in an auto accident a year ago. Since her death they say, he had been afflicted with periodic melancholia.

The average daily number of pieces of mail delivered was 330 and the average daily number of pieces delivered and collected was 330. The average daily weight of all mail handled by the carriers was 54.5 pounds.

Orders were sent out by the postoffice department at Washington to all postoffices from which mail is delivered to the rural districts to prepare reports of the mail matter handled by the rural carriers, and this has been done in all of the offices. The department desired the statistics, it is thought, for the purpose of learning the requirements of each carrier when the parcels post is established the first of next year.

A daily report was made of the number of pieces and the weight in pounds and ounces of the four classes of mail matter handled by the rural carriers out of Janesville postoffice, and from these reports the statistics were secured. Besides the daily reports, there were the totals of the amounts of mail carried by each carrier, and the amount carried by all the carriers. The preparation of the statistics was a complicated task. Some of the figures shown in the reports are as follows:

Rural Mail Delivered.

First class, letters and post cards: 21,131 pieces; 441 pounds, 13 ounces.

Second class, newspapers, magazines, periodicals: 47,872 pieces, 8,816 pounds 7 ounces.

Third class, printed matter, circulars, etc.: 9,766 pieces; 1,539 pounds, 4 ounces.

Fourth class all other mailable matter: 506 pieces; 505 pounds, 8 ounces.

Franked and official mail: 1,062 pieces; 127 pounds, 10 ounces.

Total rural mail delivered: 80,201 pieces; 13,198 pounds 5 ounces.

Rural Mail Collected.

First class: 13,150 pieces; 266 pounds, 2 ounces.

Second class: 135 pieces; 66 pounds 13 ounces.

Third class: 1,170 pieces; 277 pounds, 15 ounces.

Fourth class: 102 pieces; 57 pounds.

Franked and official mail: 12 pieces 7 ounces.

DAVIES TO DISPENSE DEMOCRATIC PLUMS

Reported That National Committee-man Is to be Referee With Respect to Federal Patronage.

Joseph E. Davies of Madison, member of the democratic national committee from Wisconsin, will be the "referee" in all matters connected with federal patronage in the state after the fourth of March next when Woodrow Wilson becomes president. This is the information which drifted in from the east. It is said to be the policy of Gov. Wilson to turn over matters of patronage in states which have no democratic senators to the national committeeman from that state.

"This of itself would place Mr. Davies right in line for the 'refereeship,' but in addition to this few men in the country have been closer to Gov. Wilson in the last few months, and it is only natural that he should have great influence in deciding who is to have the plum which are to be dropped from the democratic tree in Wisconsin."

It will bring about a curious condition within the democratic party in the state. While the "refereeship" of the democrats has control of the state central committee, they are not likely to have much to say when it comes to distributing patronage. Nor are they likely to keep much of a hold on the rank and file when Mr. Davies on the other side holds in his hands not only scores of federal appointments throughout the state, but hundreds of postoffice appointments as well. In the three districts represented by democratic congressmen they will have the power of recommending postmasters, but outside of these districts, with no democratic United States senator from this state, the matter of who shall get the places will be referred, according to present advice, to Mr. Davies.

Outside of a postoffice here and there, which will fall in now and then, it will be rather a weary wait for those who aspire to hold down jobs in Uncle Sam's service. In the eastern and western districts of the state, where the best places from a monetary point of view are located, most of the present incumbents have from one and one-half to three years still to serve. Nor is it likely that they will be disturbed until their time expires. In the last ten or twelve years it has become an unwritten law that the appointed to any of the big federal offices shall be permitted to serve out his term and it is not at all probable that this law, unwritten though it is, will be broken at this time.

For this reason any conjecture as to who will be appointed is not only premature but liable to go widely wrong when the time really comes for the making of the appointment. That they will go to the winning faction in the democracy of the state there can be no doubt. Nor will this be conducive to future harmony within the party ranks—but that is another question.

A Solemn Warning.

Madison State Journal: Let Governor McGovern recognize the fact that he was not saved by any personal popularity of his own, for of that he has little or none at this time. Let him profit by the lesson which the voters on Tuesday gave him. The will of the people is the power that rules.

SEE MADISON TEAM IN PRACTICE PLAY

Janesville Boys Are Spotted on Madison Field and "Laugh Was on Them."

The local high school football team enjoyed a day of rest last Saturday. Several members of the squad were visitors in Madison, where they witnessed the trouncing of Arkansas by Wisconsin. Two of the fellows who attended the game, went early in the morning, going up to the Madison high school, where they were informed that the high school team, contenders for the state championship, and a fast team, were under the direction of Coach Winters at Bringham Park in a signal drill. They had played Baraboo high school on last Friday, and were sore in spots even though defeating the northern school by the score of 35 to 7. With this information in mind, these two fellows found their way to the park after a long and strenuous walk.

They saw the team in practice some distance away, and went over to where they were. They were desirous of not having themselves known, but even for their quietness were found out. After watching the men for a few minutes, one of the Madison team men bellowed out, "Look out men, Janesville is here, and they will get all our plays." Then they all laughed and made the two local boys grin.

From then on the Madison team let up and refused to run regular signals, and spent the time in playing pranks which the locals were on to. The way they acted would make one think that there never was a team like them, and that they would dispose of Janesville with ease. The best they can do is to accept the local's challenge which they received last Saturday morning, and then defeat them, which will require a hard task, from the looks of things. The two Janesville fellows remained for about 15 minutes, and after looking over the team, departed. All at once, a member of the Madison team yelled out, "Hi, Falter." Falter turned around and said, "How do you know me?"

"Well, you're a regular aren't you?" was the reply. Then the entire Madison squad formed a circle, and gave the skyrocket yell for Janesville. They are a fine lot of fellows and didn't sneer Falter and his companion once. It seems that they had remembered Falter from his brilliant basketball playing at the Capital City last winter. The entire procedure turned out to be a joke.

A rumor has been around for some time, that Madison has a wonderful team. Perhaps they have, but from what these two fellows can make of them, the locals have a fighting chance, and that they are going to fight, if given a chance at them. Madison have a fairly heavy line, and a team which averages about 150 pounds. The local team are near that weight, and a close game can be expected.

The locals are out for drill tonight, and with the assistance of E. J. Haumerson and "Cherry" Woodworth, and Coach Curtis, they should prove into a hard defensive team before any big games are to be played. The second team will line up against the first squad this week and next week.

This will probably be the largest and most significant meeting for the discussion and promotion of Christianity and social and moral reform that the world has ever known. Not less than $50,000 will be expended in the organization and delegates will come from all parts of the earth. Among the speakers announced are President-elect Woodrow Wilson, Booker T. Washington, David Starr Jordan, William Jennings Bryan, Bishop Bang of Norway, Justice Charles E. Hughes, and Baron Nicolle of Russia.

At the Fountain Head.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Col. Roosevelt has been at some pains to ingratiate himself in Wisconsin as "the pioneer state in 'progressivism'" and so on. On that theory of it, he and his noisy factotum, Dixon, claimed the state for the hull moose by a vast popular vote.

Well, in his "pioneered state of 'progressivism,'" the colonel emerges at the small end of the horn as a poor third. To all present appearances, he is away below.

So the colonel's "progressivism" is rated below par at the fountain head. On that particular count Senator La Follette may indulge in a quiet handshake with himself.

ANNIVERSARY OF THE CYCLONE OF 1911 IS REMEMBERED HERE

A Year Ago This Afternoon Rock County Was Visited by Terrible Storm.

It was a year ago today, November 11th, that Rock county was visited by the worst cyclone in its history, leaving a trail of desolated farm houses and dead and injured, in its wake. It was a bright warm day until after dinner and then it clouded up and residents of Janesville knew that somewhere in the immediate vicinity a terrible storm had taken place. The first reports of the destruction came from up the river, a few miles north of the city, then came the reports from Orford and Hanover and by nightfall the full fury of the storm was known. Aid was quickly sent to the stricken families, that Saturday night, physicians making the trip, often times having to cut their way through the fallen trees and tangled wire fences.

To add to the discomforts of the unfortunate, it turned intensely cold and the suffering from this cause, in the wrecked homes, was pitiful. Sunday's reports of the destruction of property, loss of life and injured, awoke the spirit of humanity in the hearts of all and the appeal for clothing for the unfortunate brought ready response. Thousands of dollars were subscribed by generous citizens, and noble men and women undertook the work of alleviating the suffering personally by distributing the clothing and funds. Automobiles were brought into play and this little band of rescuers braved the cold and hardships of the journey to bring aid to all who needed it. Not only in Janesville, but in Beloit and throughout the county, money and clothing were sent here for their aid. The county board took up the matter and named a special committee of citizens and members of the board to disburse the funds. It was a trying time and the citizens responded liberally.

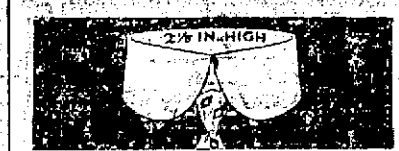

Within the year, the farm houses destroyed have been rebuilt, the school houses reconstructed and the first anniversary of the terrible disaster finds many of the sufferers in a fair way to regain some of the toll of years that was swept away in a few minutes that terrible Saturday afternoon, a year ago.

Football critics say that Bottles Thompson, Michigan's captain and fullback, is hardly a candidate for the All-American team this fall. Despite his wonderful performances in some of the games this season, they say he lacks the "All-American" class. For instance, he is said to handicap himself when hitting the line by closing his eyes and sticking his tongue out. No class to that, certainly.

Porto Rico has grown weary of cock-fighting, which has hitherto been the national sport, and hopes soon to displace it with the boxing game.

Here's a little football dope. Should Minnesota meet and defeat Wisconsin in the battle for the western supremacy, the University of Michigan would claim the championship. Dakota defeated Minnesota 12 to 0 and lost to Michigan 7 to 6. Michigan in turn lost to Syracuse by a score of 13 to 7, and Syracuse was beaten by Princeton 60 to 0. Then the Tigers lost to Harvard, 16 to 6. Should it turn out as the Michigan fans hope, the west would have the cheapest champion it ever had.

At last a pugilist has been found who hates the thought of stacking up against anything easy. His name is Al Palzer, and he's the man who hankers after Jack Johnson's heavy-weight crown. The matchmaker of a Cleveland club has been negotiating with Palzer to appear in that town, and the choice of an opponent rested between Tom Kennedy and Jim Stewart. Kennedy was finally decided upon, and word to that effect sent to Palzer. "I don't want to take on Kennedy," wired back Al in about a minute. "He is too easy. Give me Stewart, who can put up a better argument."

Heroic Palzer! The last time he met Kennedy he was held to a draw in ten rounds, and spectators said Kennedy had the best of the argument. Stewart went up against One-Round Davis of Buffalo the other day and was stopped in seven rounds.

Thorpe is proving a big-drawing card at the Indian football games this year. Hundreds attend the games just to watch him play.

University of Pennsylvania students are pulling for another football coach. They say Andy Smith, present coach, may be great and all that, but he isn't getting the games and they don't like it. They want Bill Hollenbeck, Penn's former captain and All-American fullback, to take the job. Hollenbeck is now coaching Penn State for the third season, and is having a good run of success.

MINOR LEAGUE MEN MEET IN MILWAUKEE

Magnates Discuss New National Agreement, Salary Limits and Post-Season Games.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 11.—Representatives of baseball clubs from the Atlantic to the Pacific are rounding up in Milwaukee for the annual meeting to be held tomorrow by the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, which is the governing body for all the minor organizations. The meeting promises to be one of far more than ordinary importance. The magnates will thoroughly discuss the new national agreement, which must be sent to the National Commission by March 1 for ratification. Salary limits and post-season games will come in for much attention. An element of the minor league representatives, headed by President Neal of the Bluegrass league, will enter a protest against the proposal to tax the draft money in order to provide money for the necessary running expenses of the association. As a side feature of the meeting the managers and club owners are expected to engage in numerous "trades." The heads of the twelve clubs comprised in the Central league last year will take advantage of the meeting to complete the organization of the two new leagues into which the old Central is to be divided.

FOOTBALL SITUATION CLARIFIED SATURDAY

Chicago Played Miserable Game With Northwestern—Wisconsin's Showing Very Encouraging.

Although Saturday was supposed to be an off day in the conference, it served to clarify the situation for next week, when the important battles of the season are to be fought. The Chicago-Northwestern and Illinois-Purdue games were the only contests between conference teams of importance, Minnesota having a day of rest and Wisconsin filling in the time, before the game with the Gophers next week, which probably will decide the conference championship.

True to expectations, Chicago played a miserable game against Northwestern, and as a result a gloomy finish is predicted for the Midway team. Purdue showed up well, holding Illinois to a 9 to 9 tie, and the Illinois do not look able to do as much against Chicago as the Maroon showing would indicate. The day served principally to give a line on the Chicago-Illinois game next Saturday. Neither team showed up well, and the impression from the earlier part of the season still holds that Chicago should be victor. Interest in the game arises from the rivalry of the two teams rather than from any importance in the conference race, the big battle of general interest being staged at Minneapolis.

Maroons May Take Brace.

Chicago may be expected to take a big brace during the week. This season has been a repetition of last year, a poor showing being made the week after a defeat, and the Midway fans are hoping to see the team come back as they did against Cornell. Illinois did not show any great increase in strength, Silberman being the only man new to the game who made a good impression. Woolston, the other stellar light for the Illini, is older and has been listed as one of the dangerous men on the squad throughout the season.

Stagg's talk of a weak line was verified yesterday. Without the strong back field playing for Chicago, the Midway team would be completely out of it. Stagg has been working with the line all year, without great improvement being shown, and is expected to make a supreme effort this week to make the forwards play the game they should to support their backs. The only danger lies in over-training the men showing the bad effects of their long drills against Northwestern. In the lack of spirit that marred their game.

Illinois has been trained well and may be expected to put up a spirited fight against Chicago. Chicago's advantage lies in the forward pass and the fancy formations which Stagg has been working up for the benefit of the downstate team, rather than in marked playing superiority. The Midway rooters feel that Chicago has several surprises in store for the Illini, since the men did not use anything last Saturday that had not been shown against Wisconsin, or that was an obvious variation of the old formations.

stellar work, and promises to fill the gap in effective style in case the Cardinals should lose the services of their star in next Saturday's contest. Yesterday's showing strengthened the impression that Wisconsin is the logical candidate for the honors. Last week did not serve to give any new ideas concerning the Gophers, and only their past performances can be used to give an idea of the probabilities in Saturday's game. The Gopher team has improved remarkably since the slow beginning of the season, but so far has not shown the class needed to defeat Wisconsin. Dr. Williams does not seem to have the steam-roller aggregation that showed under Chicago last year, and on comparative performances has the smaller chance against the improved Cardinal machine.

Iowa and Indiana staged a battle at Indianapolis to determine the comparative standings of the two teams in the race, Iowa nosing out the Hoosiers by a 13 to 6 score. The only other conference team to figure last in a game was Ohio State, the Buckeye squad proving Oberlin's master, 23 to 17.

THE POPULAR VOTE.
It is interesting to note that while Governor Wilson received an overwhelming majority in the electoral college, that his popular vote is the smallest, save one, of any vote ever cast for president.

While 42 per cent. is a respectable minority, it is a long way from a majority, and when the fact is considered that even this minority was made possible by republican votes in many states, through a determination to beat Roosevelt, the election of Wilson can hardly be considered a democratic victory.

If the 42 per cent. could be carefully analyzed, the discovery would be made that less than one-third of the voters, who took part in the election, endorse the principles of the democratic party. This is a fact that the newly elected president can hardly afford to overlook, and if he is to be the president of all the people, he will realize the necessity of conservative action.

The popular vote was divided between Taft and Roosevelt in the following republican states: Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, the two Dakotas, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin, and would have been in California, had Taft's name appeared on the ballot.

The fact that the Wilson electors carried the most of these states in the electoral college, changes in no way the popular sentiment against him. Eliminate the vote of the solid South, which is always democratic, and the northern endorsement represents less than 20 per cent of the voters.

If Mr. Wilson is wise he will advise conservative action. There is no progressive significance in his election, and a minority endorsement indicates that his party fails to enjoy the confidence of the great rank and file of voters, throughout the country.

THE REFORM MOVEMENT.
When one hundred men assembled at the city hall, not long ago, and demanded the enforcement of law, the spontaneous movement represented aroused public sentiment which had so long been outraged.

The committee of fifteen, appointed to represent the people, in a crusade of moral reform, and to inspire the officials with courage to perform their duty, has not been idle, and good results are already apparent. Some gambling devices have been put out of commission, and some saloons have been made to feel that the law can not be trifled with.

menced and the interest in seeing it prosecuted with vigor, is manifest on every hand. Every brotherhood in the city has endorsed it, and every pulpit has found it a fruitful topic for discussion.

HIGH FINANCE.

The president of one of the largest banking institutions in Wall Street, early in the fall laid a wager of substantial proportions that Roosevelt's popular vote would be larger than Wilson's. The nearer election approached, the less he liked his bet, so a short time ago he started out among his Bull Moose friend offering to let them in on the easy money.

When he got through he had syndicated his entire bet and had no participation in it himself. Then he made another wager that Wilson would carry forty states. Wednesday morning when the governor had been conceded 39 states this banker was seen with a half dozen newspapers spread before him trying to figure one of the doubtful states out of the Roosevelt or Taft column into the Wilson column. He did it, too; and thereby proved the theory that the man who makes money in Wall Street is the one who can most readily change his opinions to suit changed conditions.

The three-cornered fight was the only thing that gave Wilson the electoral vote, and his most ardent supporters will admit that the popular vote was against him. Pluralities are very significant where there are more than two candidates.

The Health club, organized at the close of the Flynn campaign, has arranged to meet in the gymnasium of the high school. This is as it should be, and is along the line of making the school buildings a social center, the plan just now so much discussed. The class numbers about forty, and the membership should be doubled. The first meeting will be held at 7:30 this evening.

Someone suggested yesterday that the game wardens, oil inspectors, and other attaches of the state pay roll, have scored another victory, and there is a good deal of truth in the statement. Wisconsin politics is about the smoothest proposition that ever came over the pike, and the ball-bearing machine in control has no rival, yet a majority of the people seem to like it. Occasionally a man is run over and is thrown into the scrap-heap, but the combination goes on without much friction, for the game of politics has no closed season and the wardens are always busy.

When President-elect Wilson occupies the White House he will have the satisfaction of knowing that he was the choice of a liberal majority of the people. He will have the moral support of the people who opposed him; as well, for mutual interests demand loyalty, and this is freely accorded. Mr. Wilson represents a clean type of American manhood. He combines with intelligence a high standard of morality, and an earnest desire to faithfully serve the nation which has honored him. That the people will enjoy his best efforts, is not a question of doubt.

The straw vote, so largely exploited during the campaign, was a snare and delusion, and about as reliable as a political promise. While you can suck a good deal of campaign hilarity through a straw ballot, there's nothing to it but a dark brown taste and a headache, the next morning. Roosevelt captured the straws, and his friends predicted a landslide. They were not disappointed, but the slide happened to be going the other way, and they still retain the straw ballot as a pleasant memory.

While Wilson's vote in the electoral college is top-heavy, it is significant to note that his popular vote is less than Bryan received. The 3,000,000 votes cast for Taft and Roosevelt were about equally divided, and many of the 6,500,000 for Wilson, were republican votes. Had Roosevelt kept out of the campaign, as a disturbing factor, the republican party would not have been defeated. There are less democrats in the country today than there were eight years ago, as indicated by the popular vote.

The state of Wisconsin furnished the only socialist in congress and the late election puts a democrat in his place, and there is no occasion for regret. While the democratic party has its failings, it is not tainted with socialism and the national atmosphere will have a chance to clear itself of the trend towards this dangerous doctrine, which has developed with a lot of other fads under the guise of reform. There is seldom a great loss without some gain.

The national democratic party was entitled to win in Wisconsin because it presented a solid front. There were three so-called republican parties—the regulars, the irregulars and the Wilson republican-democrats. Two of these organizations were playing into the hands of democracy, and are satisfied with results. That's the sort of a combination that Taft was "up against," and he had no chance of winning.

The result of Tuesday's election indicates that money spent in a political campaign is a gamble pure and simple. The democratic party carried a large majority of the states, and many of them were republican strongholds. The great mass of voters are not influenced by brass bands or oratory, and a large block of money was wasted in attempting to corral the popular vote.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT
BY ROY K. MOULTON.

Do You Know These Men?
I know a man who's always got a quick and certain cure for every ill or ailment that a mortal can endure. He always wants to try it out. When his friends are sick, but when he's feeling punk himself, he calls a doctor quick.

I know a man who knows just how to fix your touring car. He stands upon the curb and tells you what a chump you are. But when his lawnmower starts to squeak, he knows just where to drop the oil to make it run again, and sends it to the shop.

I know a man who tells you how you should invest your dough; how you should place your bankroll so that it will thrive and grow. But still this frenzied financier has never got a cent; his wife lukes in plain sewing so that they can pay their rent.

Whenever I encounter one who blows and blows and blows, I have my opinion on that. The conversational gazaboo has got the head of wood. The quiet party is the one who's certain to make good.

Caught on the Fly.
A well-known but broken down Detroit newspaper man, who had been a power in his day, approached an old friend the other day, in the Pontchartrian hotel and said: "What do you think? I have just received the prize insult of my life. A paper down in Muncie, Ind., offered me a job."

"Do you call that an insult?" asked the old friend. They offered me $12 a week. "Well," said the friend, "twelve a week is better than nothing." "Twelve a week—thunder?" exclaimed the old scribe. "I can borrow more than that right here in Detroit."

A Western Michigan traveling man stopped at a little country hotel in a northern village for dinner. He looked about for a napkin but couldn't find one. Finally he requested the good people of Illinois may thank the Chicago Tribune for helping to turn the state over to democracy and electing a governor who was too small of calibre to fill the mayor's chair, in the Windy City. If there is any glory in wreckage, the "Tribune" is entitled to its full share.

Roosevelt and La Follette should hunt up a couple of islands, somewhere where a one-man government is demanded. They could fill the bill to their satisfaction at least.

Colonel Roosevelt will issue a manifesto to the American people when he gets his second wind, and that ought to help some.

GREAT ACCURACY IN UNOFFICIAL RETURNS

Gazette Figures on Wednesday Last Prove Very Reliable in Giving Result in County.

It is interesting to note the reliability and correctness of the unofficial election returns as published in the Gazette last Wednesday, when compared with the official count as completed at the county clerk's office. The figures of the newspaper count and of the board of canvassers are remarkably close right down the line with changes in a few cases which did not alter the result in any particular.

One change of importance was in the majority in favor of suffrage. The Gazette figures gave the proposition an affirmative margin of 345, while the actual majority was but 150 votes. The Gazette took the greatest care possible to secure the correct returns which were handled in the editorial office by a corps of careful workmen. The paper is indebted to the town clerks for their promptness in phoning in the returns.

TWO NEW MEMBERS ON COUNTY BOARD

E. D. Cannon, Beloit and M. L. Paulson, Evansville, Have Resigned As Supervisors.

Two new members will be seated as supervisors on the county board when the board convenes in annual November session at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon. E. D. Cannon, representing the first ward of the city of Beloit, has resigned and has gone to Minnesota to reside. At a special election W. A. Rossow was chosen to represent the ward.

M. L. Paulson, who was supervisor from the first ward of the city of Janesville, has resigned and John Tullar has been appointed in his place. John Tullar was a former member of the board representing the town of Union for several terms. Committee work has not yet entirely been completed as yet. Committees No. 10 and 13 were in session today and the equalization committee is scheduled to hold a meeting tomorrow morning at nine o'clock.

It is not probable that any other than routine matters will come up for consideration at the meeting of the board tomorrow afternoon.

"Say, maw, what do you think of the nerve of this swell boob in here? He wants a napkin and he's only goin' to be here for one meal?" A slight domestic scandal shook Pawama recently and the Pawama paper tells of it as follows:

A certain country gentleman has been suffering from a cold and could not talk above a whisper. One day he went over to call on one of his neighbors named Jones. Stepping up to the kitchen door he asked if the lord of the mansion was at home. "No," whispered Mrs. Jones, "come right in."

SECOND DAY'S RUN OF BOOSTER TOUR TODAY

BOOSTERS FOR JANESVILLE AND BIG DISPLAY VISITED SOUTH-EASTERN PART OF COUNTY TODAY.

FORTY TOOK THE TRIP

Number of Boosters Was Smaller
Than Friday, But Enthusiastic Spirit Shown on the Trip.

"Twelve automobiles, all decorated with Janesville pennants and 'Booster Week' advertising signs, started at ten o'clock this morning from the corner of South Main and Court streets, near Amerphol's floral shop, on the second day's run of the automobile 'booster' tour through Rock county and the surrounding country.

Start of the Janesville "Booster" Tour of County Today.

under the auspices of the Commercial club. The cars started over for Janesville boosters who went on the trip to help in advertising Janesville and her products at the big Merchants' and Manufacturers' exhibition which opened today at the auditorium.

The number of cars taking part in today's run was smaller than on Friday and the crowd of boosters was not as large as on the first day's tour, but what the party lacked in numbers was made up in the enthusiasm shown. The trip today was to the south and southeast of Janesville, extending over into Walworth county as far as Walworth. In all about seventy-five or eighty miles were covered, but the weather was perfect, and roads were in fairly good condition, so that the ride was a more pleasurable one for those who took it, than on Friday.

Some delay in starting was occasioned by the difficulty in getting a sufficient number of cars to carry the crowd, but the number necessary was finally made up. A number of automobile owners who had taken part in Friday's run, did not appear at the starting place this morning.

The Bower City Band with eleven pieces again accompanied the boosters on the trip and played at all the stops, attracting considerable attention to the tourists and the purpose of the run. Members of the party with tin horns also aided in advertising their passage through the country.

The pilot car with Amos Rehberg driving and Edward Amerphol, Joseph Connors and James McGiffin as its occupants, started off at five minutes to ten, and the other cars, bearing the band and the booster bunch, followed immediately afterward. The first stop on today's route was at Shopiere, and then the run was made to Clinton. From Clinton the party struck out for Big Foot and Walworth, and then for Elkhorn. The mid-day stop was made at Elkhorn about one o'clock, where dinner was eaten at the Elkhorn House. On the return trip, stops were made at Delavan, Darien, Fairfield, Alton and Emerald Green. In all of the places visited considerable interest was shown in the tour and the big display it is advertising and at all stops made the hand brought out a crowd with its music.

Plans will probably be made today for completing the series of tours tomorrow with a trip through the country to the west and northwest of this city, providing enough of the merchants and boosters can leave their business to take it up.

The tentative route is as follows: Janesville, Orfordville, Brodhead, Juda, Monroe, Albany, Evansville, Brooklyn, Friesland and return to Janesville. Dinner at Monroe at the Ludlow house.

Cars for today's run were donated by the following owners: Allen P. Lovejoy, H. S. Lovejoy, N. L. Carle, Amos Rehberg, Rev. J. C. Hazen, E. E. Witherell, C. W. Diehl, John P. Cullen, H. H. Bliss, Kenneth Jeffris, and W. T. Flaherty. A machine was also secured from the Janesville Motor company to carry a portion of the party.

The members of the party on today's run were: Mayor James A. Fellers, Amos Rehberg, Edward Amerphol, Joseph Connors, James McGiffin, G. W. Squires, George S. Wright, William Kuhlman, H. A. Ford, A. P. Lovejoy, H. S. Lovejoy, Roy C. Hazen, E. Q. Bangs, G. W. Grant, E. L. Howard, H. D. Murdoch, Walter Helms, E. H. Peterson, C. W. Diehl, George Davis, John P. Cullen, J. L. PAVING BETWEEN BRIDGE AND NORTH MAIN STREET

Work Being Done by City Workmen Under Supervision of City Engineer C. V. Kerch.

City workmen today began laying brick on Fourth avenue between the bridge and North Main street. The sub-grade was rolled this morning and brick-laying began at noon. City Engineer C. V. Kerch, who has personal supervision of the work, expects that the job will be completed by tomorrow noon. The city entered into an agreement with those owning property abutting on this part of the street, whereby they agreed to pay the paving assessments levied by the city without the letting of a contract and customary "red tape."

COMPLAINT IS FILED AGAINST R. FINLEY

Summons Will Probably Be Issued by Council at Its Meeting Tomorrow—Step Toward Revoking License.

First steps toward the revocation of the saloon license of R. F. Finley, recently convicted of selling intoxicating liquor to two minor blind boys, were taken Saturday when Chief of Police Appleby filed with the city clerk a formal complaint reciting the charge and asking that the city council set a time for a hearing, to which Mr. Finley shall be summoned and show cause why his license should not be revoked. The council will receive the complaint at its meeting tomorrow afternoon and will probably issue a formal summons at this time. The procedure in the case of Finley will be the same as in that of W. A. Knipp, whose saloon license was recently revoked by the council on

THEATRE OPERATORS FINED FOR GIVING SHOW UPON SUNDAY

Peter L. Myers and Earl Brown Pleaded Guilty to Complaint Filed by
S. M. Jacobs.

Peter L. Myers proprietor of the Myers theatre, and Earl T. Brown proprietor of the Lyric, Royal and Majestic photo-play theatres pleaded guilty in the municipal court before Judge Fifield this afternoon to giving performances in their theatres on Sunday. Each was fined $5 and costs amounting in all to $3. The complaints filed by S. M. Jacobs, residing at 203 South Main street, were made under the state law and charged that the defendants "did wilfully and unlawfully and on the first day of the week do labor, business and works in that (they) gave in (their theatres) exhibitions or shows for gain, the said labor and work, and business not then and there being a work of charity or necessity."

Mr. Myers who entered the courtroom after Mr. Brown had pleaded "guilty" and paid his fine, at first declared his intention of pleading "not guilty" and of asking for a jury trial, but on learning what Mr. Brown had done changed his plea to guilty. Mr. Jacobs the complainant said to have started the prosecution entirely on his own initiative and not to be the official representative of any organization.

It is estimated that no less than one thousand people attended the performances at the Myers theatre yesterday, and Mr. Brown estimates the attendance at the photo-plays at 1100. There is now no prohibition of Sunday theatre performances in the city ordinances, the prohibition having been removed by the late Common Council a short time before it passed out of existence. Up to that time Sunday theatre performances in Janesville were infrequent.

resume operations tomorrow morning.
Sunday Alarm: The fire department was called out by a still alarm at about eleven o'clock, yesterday morning to the Hotel London where it was thought a fire had started. On inspection the firemen found that the source of the smoke which penetrated to the first floor was a clogged chimney leading from a small soft coal stove in the rear of the basement. The firemen cleaned the chimney with the heavy iron chain always carried for this purpose.

Three Drunks Arraigned: Three men were arraigned in the municipal court on charges of intoxication this morning. All pleaded guilty. Michael O'Gara, an old offender was sentenced for five days, in jail and a fine of $4 and costs or eight days, additional. George Barford and W. Kelly were unable to pay fines of $5 and costs and went to jail, as did also O'Gara.

PARALYTIC STROKE
TAKES A. C. GARLT

Well Known Young Man, Life Long Resident of Janesville Township, Passes Away at Noon Today.

A. C. Garlt, a well known and highly esteemed young man who had been a life long resident of the town of Janesville, passed away shortly after noon today, at his home on the Madison road five miles northeast of this city. His death followed a paralytic stroke with which he was taken on Monday last and after a week of painful suffering.

Mr. Garlt had been in poor health since last spring and had been unable to attend to his farm duties during the past summer. Until recently it had been thought that he was gaining until his last serious illness which it was shown would be fatal.

He was born June 23, 1870, and had his district as school clerk accompanying resided in the town of Janesville. Since the death of his father and mother, fourteen years ago he had worked the homestead where he had been reared and where he died today.

Endowed with a cheerful and optimistic nature Mr. Garlt had the happy faculty of winning friends. He had a large acquaintance in this city as well as in his home community and his genial greetings and pleasing ways endeared him to the hearts of many. A man of temperate and regular habits, he possessed many sterling qualities.

As a citizen he took an active interest in the betterment of his community and for several years efficiently served plying much in the way of bettering the rural school of that locality. That a man just entering on the golden years of middle life should be stricken causes keen regret and sorrow among his large circle of friends and neighbors.

Mr. Garlt was united in marriage in 1894 to Miss Mary Schwanke, daughter of Mrs. Ferdinand Schwanke, of this city. Besides Mrs. Garlt, he leaves four children, one daughter and three sons: Leona, Ralph, Arthur and Frank. He had no other immediate relatives.

COUNTY IS AGAINST RESOLUTION NO. 48

Proposition to Allow State to Buy
Land for Public Purposes Narrowly Defeated in County.

Rock county has a majority of 302 votes against the adoption of joint resolution No. 48, authorizing the state and cities to acquire lands for public and municipal purposes or for permanent improvements. The vote stood 1,068 for and 1,370 against. The city of Beloit went strong for this amendment as well as for the others which accounts for the fact that this resolution came so near carrying the county. Reports today show that all but the suffrage amendment carried the state.

One other amendment Rock county defeated. On the joint resolution No. 42, extending from 20 to 50 years, the time within which debts acquired in the acquisition of lands by cities and counties over 150,000 population, shall be paid, the vote stood for 968, against 1,125.

The suffrage amendment has a majority of 180 in the county. The vote on this proposition was exceptionally large when compared with the others upon which there was a relatively light vote. The official suffrage vote was 2,332 in favor and 4,152 against.

On joint resolution No. 24 to amend the provision in regard to the salary of judges, the vote was 1,071 in favor and 928 against. There is practically no change in the official figures for the presidential vote from those published as the unofficial returns. Taft's plurality in the county remains at 1,245. The vote for the various candidates standing as follows: Taft 4,273; Wilson 3,030; Roosevelt, 2,003; Charles 614; Debs, 252; Reimer, 11.

One noticeable peculiarity in the official returns was the fact that Otto Zander, a Taft elector, received no votes in the 2nd precinct of the fifth ward, Beloit, while the other Taft electors received 161 vote. It is hard to account for this neglect but that is what the returns show. The vote for the various electors on the various tickets ran uniform for the most part on the same ticket.

The county clerk has sent in the official returns to the secretary of state, the governor, the state treasurer and the industrial commission as required. Mr. Starr, chairman of the republican county committee, sent in the official returns for state, legislature and presidential tickets to the secretary of the state republican committee at Baraboo.

CHEERFUL NEWS

For Feeble Old People

As one grows old the waste of the system becomes more rapid than repair, the organs act more slowly and less effectually than in youth, the circulation is poor, the blood thin and digestion weak.

Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil is the ideal strengthener and body-builder for old folks, for it contains the very elements needed to rebuild wasting tissues and replace weakness with strength. Vinol also fortifies the system against colds and thus prevents pneumonia.

A grand niece of Alexander Hamilton over eighty years of age once remarked: "Vinol is a god-send to old people. Thanks to Vinol I have a hearty appetite, sleep soundly, feel active and well. It is the finest tonic and strength creator I have ever used."

If Vinol fails to rebuild up the feeble old people, and create strength we will return your money. Smith Drug Co., Janesville, Wis.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

WHAT ABOUT TODAY'S MISTAKES.

"YES, that was one of the greatest mistakes in my life," I heard a man say the other day. "I can't get over my having been such a fool. Why, I often lie awake nights thinking of it and kicking myself."

The man who lies awake nights thinking of his mistakes is certainly not the man who will get up in the morning alert and wide-awake. But that is not what I started to say. It was the other man's answer that I wanted to bring out.

Said he: "You'll never get anywhere that way. If you want to lie awake nights and think about something, think about the mistakes you may be making right now!"

I think that's a mighty suggestive sentence. We all make mistakes from time to time, and as soon as we get enough of a perspective to realize that they ARE mistakes and to be willing to acknowledge them, we begin to bewail them. "If I had only done this or that," we mourn, "how much better off I'd be today."

That an absurd waste of energy! How much more intelligently we can use our time in thinking, "What is there that I ought to be doing today to make myself better off tomorrow?"

When you are inclined to think of yesterday's mistakes, try it. Say to yourself, "I didn't have any idea that was a mistake when I was making it. Now I wonder if there is anything in my present life that I am being just as blind about?"

Try to get a perspective on your life; try to see it as you will look back on it in ten years.

Of course, you won't be entirely successful, but if you try honestly, you may be able to lift a corner of the veil and get a little idea of your present mistakes and unappreciated opportunities.

Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide," is a misleading sentiment. The moment to decide comes to every one of us times without number. We never stop making important decisions until we stop breathing.

So don't waste any time or energy in fretting over past mistakes and lost opportunities. When you find your mind turning that way, take it, "by the scruff of the neck," and turn it towards your present life. The moment you catch yourself thinking of past mistakes, let that be a signal to you to ask yourself these questions:

"Am I making any great mistake NOW?"
"Am I losing any valuable opportunity NOW?"
"Am I doing or failing to do anything NOW that I shall regret in five years?"

And by the time you have answered these questions about the vital present, you will probably have forgotten the dead past.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

THE TABLE.
Original Idea for Christmas Cake—Two-thirds cup butter, two cups sugar, four eggs, one cup milk, 3-1/2 cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder. Cream butter, add gradually sugar and eggs well-beaten. Mix and sift flour and baking powder, add alternately with milk to first mixture. This will make three large or four small loaves.

When one pint whipping cream, add one-half cup sugar, one teaspoon vanilla; place between cake, on top and on sides. Get little green and red candies and place them so they will form a wreath of holly around the cake.

Thanksgiving—Popcorn Potatoes.—Take white of one egg and exactly as much cold water. Stir in confectioner's sifted sugar until very stiff and smooth; remove to a smooth surface, flavor with half teaspoon vanilla extract and knead in half cup of popcorn and two tablespoons grated coconut. Form into small potatoes, simulating eyes with pieces of split almonds; roll in powdered cinnamon. If rightly made they will defy detection and are most delicious. Especially nice for children.

Bread Omelet.—Three eggs beaten separately, one-half cup bread crumbs soaked in one-half cup sweet milk. Salt and pepper. Cook as griddle cakes in plenty of water.

Cranberries are much nicer, when desired for sauce, if put through the food chopper, using the coarse chopper. Or, chop coarsely in a bowl. The sugar penetrates every bit in this way.

Delicious Fig Pudding Without Eggs.—One cup flour, one cup bread crumbs, one cup chopped figs, one-half cup sugar, one cup milk, three-fourths cup suet, one teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder, one tablespoon cocoa.

Chop suet and figs, add flour and baking powder (sifted together), bread crumbs, sugar, salt, cocoa and moisten with milk. Turn into buttered baking dish and steam two hours. Serve with lemon sauce.

Homemade Baking Powder.—I make my own baking powder, which I think is as good as any we buy and much cheaper.

One pound flour, one pound cream of tartar, one-half pound soda. Sift together four or five times and put up in boxes.

Quince Honey and Jelly.
Quince honey is splendid on pancakes. Make sirup of three pounds sugar and a pint of water. Into this stir six large peeled and grated quinces. Boil 15 minutes and can for winter use.

Quince Jelly.—Save all peelings, cores and seeds. Cover with water and cook until very soft. Strain, add as much sugar as you have juice and boil until thick enough to tell.

Dates With Cream.—Wash a few dates and remove the stones, with a sharp knife. Place them in a bowl and add water enough to soak them well. Set this over a teakettle of boiling water for half an hour; so that the dates will soften and become tender. When ready to serve add whipped cream.

Apples With Grape Juice.—This dish must start with nice-flavored apples. Core and pare, then cook in unfermented grape juice until they are tender. Remove the apple and pour over the juice that has been cooked until quite thick. Serve cold, with or without cream.

Scrambled Eggs.—Break the egg into a bowl and beat quickly. Add two tablespoons of beef tea, a pinch of salt and a dash of paprika. Set the bowl into boiling water and cook, stirring all the time. Serve on a piece of well-buttered toast.

Raw beef sandwiches are often most appetizing. Scrape with a spoon a slice of round steak. When sufficient amount is removed, spread on buttered bread, season with salt and a bit of onion juice and place the sandwich in the oven a moment to become hot.

SHOULD GRAPE SKINS BE EATEN?

Whether the skin of the grape should be eaten is a question commonly asked. There is nutriment in the outer covering of all fruits, and it is not a good plan to throw away the entire skin; yet the skin of the grape is tough, and it requires considerable expenditure of energy to reduce it in the stomach. It should, therefore, be thoroughly masticated, so that all the nutriment is extracted, and the tasteless fiber rejected.

of 18. Am I too young to have a steady beau? There is a young man I am much in love with, but my parents forbid, the his company because we are of different religions. He refuses to be put off and wants me to elope with him. What shall I do? BLUE EYES.

My dear, I never advise people of different religions to marry. Trouble nearly always comes of it. Your parents are wise. You are young enough to wait for a young man of your own religion to marry you. Don't elope with anybody. Marry with the blessing of your parents and your church.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Which will be worn the most this winter—chinchilla or fur coats? Which is the more stylish now.

CONSTANT READER.
Both will be worn. Just now chinchilla is better.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What do you think of a lady who has been married 18 years and has three children, also grandchildren, and corresponds with men and her husband does not know? Should her child keep it from her father, to keep peace in the family? MRS. T. E. B.

As long as no harm is done by the correspondence, why tell? Surely a woman of that age is beyond the danger line.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 19 years old and very much in love with a fellow I met last year, but am keeping company with another fellow. I do not like so well though he seems to like me very much. Shall I stop keeping company with him, as I do not like him as well as the fellow I met last year, but I can never marry this fellow as he does not keep good company and is turning out to drink.

It isn't wise to go with anybody who doesn't keep good company, for you place yourself in the same class as the company he keeps. Also, it means sure sorrow to allow yourself to like anybody who doesn't know when to stop drinking.

Show the world that you know a good man when you see him, and don't go with any other kind of a man.

MOST of us are wonderful economists when it comes to making a little goodness go a long way. We hate to waste it or show it when it will not be appreciated.

In this world it is necessary to be a little too good in order to be good enough. —Marivaux.

DISHES FOR THE SICK ONE.

For any invalid who enjoys fish, this will prove a nice dish:

Fish Souffle.—Shred half a cup of codfish fine, add a half cup of rich cream. Beat the white of an egg to a stiff froth; beat the yolk and add it to the fish. Set over the fire and season with paprika, and when cooked fold in the white of the egg. All must be done quickly, not to overcook the egg. Serve at once. The fish should be parboiled after shedding and the water removed, so that it will not be too salty.

Dates With Cream.—Wash a few dates and remove the stones, with a sharp knife. Place them in a bowl and add water enough to soak them well. Set this over a teakettle of boiling water for half an hour; so that the dates will soften and become tender. When ready to serve add whipped cream.

Apples With Grape Juice.—This dish must start with nice-flavored apples. Core and pare, then cook in unfermented grape juice until they are tender. Remove the apple and pour over the juice that has been cooked until quite thick. Serve cold, with or without cream.

Scrambled Eggs.—Break the egg into a bowl and beat quickly. Add two tablespoons of beef tea, a pinch of salt and a dash of paprika. Set the bowl into boiling water and cook, stirring all the time. Serve on a piece of well-buttered toast.

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN

by Barbara Boyd

Dolly Discusses Some of Men's Little Faults

I DO think John is the most exasperating man—sometimes," said Dolly over her back fence to her neighbor. "Yesterday, he told me he wasn't coming home to dinner, so I told Mary she could go off for the afternoon. It's a good thing, you know, to give them little favors like that once in a while."

"I don't know," interrupted the neighbor. "Sometimes, it makes them apish. Give them an inch and they'll take an ell."

"Mary isn't that way. She's devoted to me. Well, anyway, I told her she could go. And I didn't put any rats in my hair, and I just slipped on an old negligee, for I thought for once I'd be comfortable. You can be so comfortable if there are no men around."

The neighbor nodded understandingly. "And I was just sitting down to a snack of left-overs,—you don't catch me cooking for myself,—when in walked John. That was bad enough, but that wasn't the worst. What do you think he had done?"

The neighbor looked expectant. "He had brought a friend with him, a fellow from the West, that he's cracked up to me ever since we were married. Now wasn't that awful?"

"That's the way with men," said the neighbor. "They never think. You might suppose they thought food just grew on the table. I wish sometimes they had to keep house for a week or two. I'd certainly put it over them for awhile. I'd do every single, solitary thing, they do, to make housekeeping hard. I'd never come to meals when they are ready. I'd leave all the doors open, and throw papers around, and never have my laundry where it could be found. And I'd scold the children and groan about the bills and not leave the money to pay the fireman. And I'd criticize everything he wore, and I'd stay away evenings and leave him alone,—though I guess that would not do much good, for he'd be off himself. And I'd forget to put the ashes out or bring up coal."

"Goodness!" exclaimed Dolly. "What an awful home you'd have." The neighbor laughed. "I don't believe any man does all those things. But most men do some of them. And none of them are necessary. They are just habits. And your husband's coming home when he said he wouldn't isn't any worse than mine's not coming when he says he will. He serves me that trick every little while. And I wait and wait, and everything spoils, and Jane grumbles, because she wants to get her work done. And finally, I sit down and eat dried up and tasteless things. And after a while he comes in and says he was detained, which is all in your eye. I don't know anything that makes me madder than that."

"Oh, I don't know," said Dolly. "If you'd been in my shoes last night, I guess you'd been mad. I had to get dinner and get dressed and apologize and be pleasant. And I do hate to cook and wash dishes."

Then the two fell silent a moment. "Well," said Dolly, turning to go. "As a rule, John is pretty thoughtful. He doesn't often do things like that."

"Neither does Dick," said the other cheerfully. "Men aren't half bad. But they might be better."

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

by Edna K. Woolley

bought for the spoiled children of today.

LET'S GET BACK.

"Make the living room and conservatory into one," is the newest cry. In fact, it's the latest fashion, and is hailed as something quite novel.

But is it? Don't you remember, when you were a youngster, that on one side of the sunny dining room was a deep, wide square bay window filled with all kinds of flowers and foliage?

Remember the old iron stand on which the flowers stood? It was built like steps. You thought it was a marvelously clever arrangement. I know I did!

There were all sorts of geraniums and fuchsias and begonias,—remember the calla lily, and how you watched the unfolding of its furled whiteness?

There was an immense ivy of which the whole family was proud. It was draped over the square of the bay window and hung like a portiere. There were some plants from the fields and the woods that you'd helped mother gather and in which you felt a proprietary interest.

Mother's wasn't the only living-room conservatory in those days.

It was a careless housewife indeed who didn't have her stand of winter plants which she petted most carefully and over which she took as much pride as she did in any of her household appointments.

A home without its "window garden" in the living room wasn't a home. No lonely rubber plant or single half-starved Boston fern, and certainly no artificial palm, was considered sufficient. Women exchanged plant experiences as they exchanged cooking experiences, and a slip from a cherished plant was valued as much as the recipe of a treasured dish.

Even the poorest had a bit of a window garden—perhaps the one bright spot in dull existence.

And whoever could afford it had a canary—a bird so full of song that when two or three people got together for a talk one had to throw a little shawl over the cage to keep the songster quiet.

The modern woman is not as lovable as her mother and grandmother were. She is more selfish, gives less for what she gets and somehow doesn't radiate the blessedness that seemed to surround the woman who made her home and her husband and children the great points in her life.

The modern woman has lost much of the loveliness, of beautiful influence upon the lives of those about her, largely because she has learned to despise the homely things—the things which she considers "common" and makers of drudgery.

Some of us are trying to get back. It's not easy, for now we have flats, hotels, city houses in narrow city streets; less room to live; actually less light and air for each of us. Recreation has been commercialized until we have grown up with the belief that the one place in the world where one cannot have a good time is home. We must spend money to have a good time.

We have forgotten that the cleanest, finest joy is earned by thought and toil. The toys we made ourselves, when we were little, gave us far more pleasure than the expensive ones

REVIVAL SERVICES BEGIN LAST NIGHT

REV. ROBERTS GIVES FIRST ADDRESS OF REVIVAL SERIES.

EVANGELIST TO BE HERE

Rev. J. Walter Gibson, of Muncie, Ind., Will Arrive Tuesday to Conduct Meetings.

Rev. Chas. J. Roberts opened a series of revival meetings at the United Brethren church with an address last night. The meetings will be held each night this week with the exception of Saturday and will begin Tuesday night. Rev. Roberts will speak this evening.

In his address last evening Rev. Roberts emphasized the value of personal work in revival services. The central thought of his talk was to the effect that all could not be great preachers or evangelists but all could be helpful in speaking a word to interest his neighbor his brother and his friend in the cause of Christ.

There were several advantages in this kind of work according to the speaker. The fact that everyone could do it, that it could be done at any time or at almost any place, and the fact of personal understanding and persuasion, resulted in effective work.

There were at the same time a number of requisites for successful personal work. One must first of all be unalterably saved to the Christian faith; he must be possessed of a realization of the greatness of that faith and that salvation; and he must also know that there is no middle ground Christianity, that some are lost and promptly at seven-thirty o'clock. Rev. Roberts has secured the Rev. J. Walter Gibson of Muncie, Ind., known as "The Hoosier Evangelist," to assist in the revival and a series of interesting services is anticipated. Rev. Roberts stated in announcing Rev. Gibson's engagement here that he was most fortunate to secure a speaker of unusual power and magnetism. Rev. Gibson will arrive in Janesville Tuesday and will conduct the service on some are saved, that those who are not saved are lost.

Rev. Roberts criticized the coolness and lack of hospitality which is sometimes seen in the Christian churches. Church members were self centered at times and they took greater interest in greeting their friends at the close of the church service than extending a welcome to the stranger to those with whom they were not so well acquainted. He asked the members of his congregation to make a special effort to meet the outsiders especially during the revival services.

The scripture lesson was the first chapter of St. John's gospel which told of the conversion of Andrew and Peter to Christ. He took the work of Andrew in bringing his brother Peter to Christ following as the object lesson for the week of the revivals. Andrew was an obscure man but he brought to the Christian faith a man who swayed thousands of souls. The great test of Christianity at all time, said Rev. Roberts, was the ability of the Christian to influence others and through his personal relationship with a friend or brother bring him to God.

HUNTERS WARNED NOT TO LOOK LIKE DEER

Wardens Caution Them to Wear Garb That Can Not be Mistaken—Game Laws Unchanged.

Several Janesville hunters will visit the deer country before the close of the season and in spite of all caution, some of them may come home with a bullet intended for a deer, or a third term candidate. The number of accidental deaths has been on a steady increase. Game wardens everywhere urge people who risk their lives in the woods at this time of the year to wear a garb that cannot be mistaken for the red-brown skin of the deer.

There has been no change in the laws governing the killing and shipping of deer since last season. The animals are protected in thirty-eight counties and it is unlawful to hunt at night with searchlights. Dogs are not allowed to aid in tracking deer, and the use of salt as bait, or pitfalls, traps and snares also is prohibited.

Over fifty wardens will be on duty in the northern part of the state. Some of these will superintend the shipping of deer, taking care that none are sent without proper identification tags.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

POPULAR SONGS.

(By Howard L. Ramm.)

THE popular song is a fricasseed composition consisting of a feeble crime against the laws of harmony hooked to a misdeed in the form of original poetry. Some of these songs are worse than others, and worse, they get the more popular they are.

Popular songs are written by people who strive to produce one hit and then retire from the public gaze with their ill-gotten gain. Little did Chas. K. Harris dream when he wrote "After the Ball" and adorned it with a large photograph of the author in a boiled shirt, that it would bring $40,000 to him and a deep sense of settled melancholy to everybody else. Mr. Harris is a fertile producer of songs, with a factory output of twelve complete ditties per day, but he has not been good for anything but a butt toward third-base since writing that inspired masterpiece.

The best selling popular songs start out with an uneasy tempo and close in strict waltz time. After a person has met one of these songs a few times he will not have to be introduced to any of the others, as they come by the bolt and are dressed a good deal alike. They always deal with somebody who proved untrue just prior to the ring service and then comes back and hangs over the front gate in a repentant mood.

The most overworked subject of popular song writing is the full moon. This word rhymes nicely with "spoon" and also with "loon," although the latter is seldom used. It is a mighty poor song which does not ring in the moon, several pangs of regret and the assurance that the undersigned will remain true until death or thereabouts.

Popular songs are used with much success to bridge a gap at moving picture shows, the bridging being done in a rigid tone of voice by amateur vocalists who pronounce the words "backwards. They are also sung with considerable ecstasy in the front parlor, and succeed in keeping father and mother in a state of profane wakefulness.

Don't Admit Light-Decayed Beer Into Your House

You must drink beer not only made pure, but kept pure.

Purity exceeds all other costs in our brewery. We even filter the air in which Schlitz is cooled. We scald every tub, keg and barrel, every pipe and pump, every time we use it.

Then, instead of putting pure beer in light glass bottles we use Brown Bottles.

Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass gives the best protection against light. The Brown Bottle protects Schlitz purity from the brewery to your glass.

We began in a hut, sixty years ago. Today our agencies dot the earth. Our output exceeds a million barrels a year. More and more people each year are drinking Schlitz.

Why don't you, too, drink only pure beer—Schlitz in Brown Bottles.

The Lady of the Mount

by FREDERIC S. ISNAM
AUTHOR OF "THE STROLLERS," "UNDER THE ROSE," "ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WATERS"

Gay voices sounded without; nearer; she walked to a door opposite the entrance their visitors were approaching. An instant, and she would have passed out, when the Governor spoke. But the Marquis, stepping quickly in a few moments later, noted nothing amiss between them. "Your Excellency!" With filial respect he greeted the Governor. "My Lady!" Gaily, approvingly, his eye passed over her; then, in that hall dedicated to chivalry, a graceful figure, he sank to his knee; raised a small cold hand, and pressed it to his lips.

CHAPTER XXV.

The Under World.

A coterie of brilliant folk soon followed in the wake of my lord, the Marquis' retinue; holiday banners were succeeded by holiday ribbons; the miserere of the multitude by psalms of merriment. Hymen, to Hymen! In assuming the leading role to which circumstances now assigned her, the Governor's daughter brought to the task less energy than she had displayed on that other occasion when visitors had sojourned at the rock. Her manner was changed—first, unlike warm; then, almost indifferent; until, at length, one day she fairly waived the responsibility of planning amusements; laid before them the question: What, now, would they like to do? "Devise a play," said one. "With shepherds and shepherdesses!"

The Marquis, however, qualified the suggestion. "A masque! that is very good; but, for this morning—I have been talking with the commandant—and have another proposal—"

"Which is?"

"To visit the dungeons."

"The dungeons?" My lady's face changed.

"And incidentally inspect their latest guests! Some of you heard of him when we were here before—Le Seigneur Noir—the Black Seigneur!"

"Le Seigneur Noir!" They clapped their hands. "Yes, let us see him! Nothing could be better. What do you say, Elise?"

She started to speak, but for the instant her lips could frame no answer; with a faint, strained smile, confronted him, when some one anticipated her reply.

"Did she not leave it to us? It is we who decide."

And a merry party they swept along, bearing her with them; up the broad stairway, cold, gray in the moon; beneath the abbey's bridge—black, spying span!—to the church, and thence to the isolated space before the guard-house to the dungeons. Here, at the sound of their voices, a man, carrying a bunch of keys—about outwardly the antithesis to the bunched-back—peered from the entrance.

"Unless I am mistaken, the new jailer!" With a wave of his hand, the Marquis indicated this person. "The commandant was telling me his Excellency had engaged one—from Bicetre, or Fort l'Evêque, I believe?"

"Bicetre, my lord!" said the man gravely. "And before that, the Bastille."

"Ah!" laughed the nobleman. "That pretty place some of the foolish people are grumbling about! As if we could do without prisons any more than without palaces! But we have come, my good fellow, to inspect this lower world of yours!"

The man's glance passed over the paper the Marquis handed him; then silently he moved aside, and unlocked the iron doors.

"Are you not coming?" At the threshold the Marquis looked back. When first they had approached the guard-house, involuntarily had the Governor's daughter drawn aside to the ramparts; now, with face half-averted, stood gazing off.

"Coming?" Surprised, the Marquis noted her expression; the fixed brightness of her eyes and her parted lips. "Oh, yes!" And turning abruptly, she hastened past him.

Would they have to be locked in?—the half-apprehensive query of one of the ladies caused the jailer at first to hesitate and then to answer in the negative. He would leave the doors from the outer room open, and himself await there the visitors' return. With which reassuring promise, he distributed lights; called a guardman, familiar with the intricate underground passages, and consigned them to his care.

One of the gay procession, the Lady Elise stepped slowly forward; the guide proved a talkative fellow, and seemed anxious to answer their many inquiries concerning the place. The salle de la question? Yes, it existed; but the ancient torture devices for the "interrogatory ordinary" and the "interrogatory extraordinary" were no longer pressed into service; the King had ordered them relegated to the shelves of the museum. The cabanots, or black holes? Louis XI. built them; the carceres duri and, vade in pace, however, dated from Saint Maurritius, fourth abbot of the Mount.

"And the Black Seigneur? How have you accommodated him?"

"In the petit exil; just to the left! We are going there now."

"I am going back!" A hand touched the arm of the Marquis, last of the file of visitors, and, lifting his candle, he held it so that the yellow glimmer played on the face of the Governor's daughter. Her eyes looked deeper; full of dread, as if the very spirit of the subterranean abode had seized her. He started.

"Surely you, Elise, are not afraid?"

"I prefer the sunlight," she said hurriedly in a low tone. "It—it is not cheerful down here! No; do not call the guide—or let the others know. I'll return alone, and—wait for you at the guard-house."

He, nevertheless, insisted upon accompanying her; but, indicating the not distant door through which they had come, she professed to make light of objections, and when he still clung to the point, replied with a flash of spirit, sudden and passionate. It compelled his acquiescence; left him surprised for a second time that day; a little hurt, too, perhaps, for heretofore had their intimacy been maintained on a strictly ethical and charming plane. But he had no time for analysis; the others were drawing away to the left, into a side passage; and, with a last backward glance toward the retreating figure, the Marquis reluctantly followed the majority.

Despite, however, her avowed repugnance for that under-world, my lady showed now no haste to quit it; for scarcely had the others vanished than she stopped; began slowly to retrace her way in the direction they had taken. When the narrow route to the petit exil connected with the main aisle, a sudden draft of air extinguished her light; yet still she went on, led by the voices, and a glimmer afar, until reaching a room, low, massive, as if hewn from the solid rock, again she paused. Drawing behind a heavy square pillar, she gazed at the lords and ladies assembled in the forbidding place; listened to a voice that ran on, as if discoursing about some anomalous thing. Again was she cognizant of their questions; a jest from my lord, the Marquis; she saw that several stole forward; peered, and started back, half afraid.

But, at length, they asked about the oubliettes, and, chatting gaily, left. Their garments almost touched the Governor's daughter; lights played about the gigantic pillars, and like will-o'-the-wisps whisked away. Now, staring straight ahead toward the chamber which had vacated, my lady's attention became fixed by a single dot of yellow—a candle placed in a niche by the jailer's assistant. It seemed to fascinate; to draw her forward; across the portals—into the room itself!

How long she stood there in the faint suggestion of light, she did not realize; nor when she approached the iron-barred aperture, and what she first said! Something eager, solicitous, with odd silences between the words, until the impression of a motionless form, and two steady, cynical eyes fastened on her, brought her to an abrupt pause. It was some time before she continued, more coherently, an explanation about her apprehension on account of her father, which had entirely left her when she peered through the window of the guard-house.

"You thought me, then, but a common assassin?" a satirical voice interposed.

"My father hates you, and you—"

"My Lady has, perhaps, a standard of her own for judging!"

Unmindful of ironical incredulity, she related how she had been forced to take refuge in the wheel-house; how, when Sanchez had seen her, alarmed she had fled blindly down the passage; waited, then hearing them all coming, at a loss what else to do, had opened the wheel-house door; run into the store-room! What she had seen from there, disconnectedly, also she referred to; his rescue of the others; his remaining behind to bear the brunt—as brave an act as she knew of! Her tone became impetuous.

"Who betrayed me?" His voice, bold and scoffing, interrupted.

She answered. It was like speaking to some one in a tomb. "The soldier you bound gave the alarm."

From behind the bars came a mocking laugh.

"You don't believe me?" She caught her breath.

"Believe? Of course."

"You don't!" she said, and clung tighter to the iron grating. "And I can't make you!"

"Why should your Ladyship want to? What does it matter?"

"My Father Hates You, and You—"

"But I do not want you to think—I can't let you think," she began.

"Elise!" The searchers were drawing nearer.

She would have stepped back, but the fingers tightened on her hand. "They will be here in a moment—"

Still he did not relinquish his hold; the dark face was next to hers; the piercing, relentless eyes studied the agitated brown ones. The latter cleared; met his fully an instant. "Believe!" that imploring wild glance seemed to say. Did his waver, for a moment; the harshness and mockery, softened on his face?

"Elise!" From but a short distance came the voice of the Marquis. A moment the Black Seigneur's hand gripped my lady's harder with a strength he was unaware of. A slight cry fell from her lips, and at once, almost roughly, he threw her hand from him.

"Bah!" again he laughed mockingly. "Go to your lover!"

Released thus abruptly she wavered, straightened, but continued to stand before the dungeon as if incapable of further motion.

"Elise! Are you there?"

"There!" Caverns and caves called out.

"There!" gibed voices amid a labyrinth of pillars, and mechanically she caught up the candle; fled.

"Here she is!" Coming toward her quickly out of the darkness, the Marquis uttered a glad exclamation. "We have been looking for you everywhere. Did I not say you should not have attempted to return alone? Mon dieu! you must have been lost!"

AT A MOTHER'S MEETING

The wife of a noted New York divine said to her listeners, "Watch carefully your daughter's physical development. Mothers should see that nature is assisted, if necessary, to perform its offices and keep their daughters well informed as to matters pertaining to health."

Irregularities and pain are sure symptoms of some organic trouble and mothers may depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the standard remedy for women's ills, to restore the system to a healthy normal condition.

"They are not, unless—"

"Elise!" From afar a loud call interrupted; reverberating down the main passage, was caught up here and there. "Elise! Elise!" The whole under-world echoed to the name.

"I promised to meet them at the guard-house," she explained hurriedly. And hardly knowing what she did, put out her hand, through the bars, toward him. In the darkness a hand seized hers; she felt herself drawn; held against the bars. They bruised her shoulder; hurt her face. The chill of the iron sent a shudder through her; though the pain she did not feel; she was cognizant only of a closer view of a figure; the chains from him to the wall; the bare, damp floor—then, of a voice low, tense, that now was speaking:

"Your Ladyship, indeed, found means to punish a presumptuous fellow, who dared displease her. But ma foi! she should have confined her punishment to the offender. Those stripes inflicted on him, my old servant! Think you I knew not it was my Lady's answer to the outlaw, who had the temerity to speak words that offended—"

"You dream that! You imagine that!"

The warmth of his hand seemed to burn hers; her fingers, so closely imprisoned, to throb with the fierce beating of his pulses.

"I do not want you to think—I can't let you think," she began.

"Elise!" The searchers were drawing nearer.

She would have stepped back, but the fingers tightened on her hand. "They will be here in a moment—"

Still he did not relinquish his hold; the dark face was next to hers; the piercing, relentless eyes studied the agitated brown ones. The latter cleared; met his fully an instant. Fighting Man.

It is man's nature to fight. It is his merit to fight for what he believes to be right. Courage and bravery are not achieved by hiring a lawyer. A man who is not willing to fight to the death for the right or for his own is not as good or complete a man as one who is willing. But opinions about this are not so important as the fact that it is man's nature to fight, and that neither resolutions nor legislation nor provision to get over all kinds of trouble in any other way than by fighting will avail.—Elwood Hendrick in the Atlantic.

Pen Mar.

Some fellow down Lancaster way has come out with the explanation as to how Pen Mar got its name. "It is of Cornish extraction," says the Lancaster man, and he quotes an ancient rhyme to prove it. The fact is that Pen Mar is so called because it is on the Mason Dixon line, with Pennsylvania on one side and Maryland on the other, the first three letters of each state name being used to form the word.—Philadelphia North American.

Mystery of Life and Death.

In many cases of death, as for instance from drowning, the tissues remain absolutely unchanged, yet where there was life before there is now no life; something has gone out that coordinated the physical and chemical forces of the body, kept them at work, prevented them from interfering with each other, kept the cells in equilibrium and was the source of all the energy in the body. There is the baffling mystery of life—and of death.

You Won't Find a Gun and Rabbit

for you to gather them in. But if you have the gun the getting of the rabbit is an easy matter.

Two ways of getting guns and rabbits:

One is to read Gazette "For Sale—Miscellaneous" ads on the WantAd page and to pick up a gun offered, and the other is to run a "Gun Wanted" ad and to choose from several offers.

Rabbits or pianos or horses or autos are a matter of individual needs or desire, but you can get what you want when you want it through Gazette Want Ads.

Dippy Dope

IF THE BUILDING IS MADE OF STONE IS THE WALL PAPER?
OR IF A TON OF BRICK WAS BOUNCED OFF A GUY'S DOME WOULD HIS HAT STILL BE FELT?

TIME TO WORRY.
The autumn air—
How crisp and rare
It seems. But if you're broke
You hate to hear
That winter's near—
And your overcoat in "soak."

Find a lone shark.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Nov. 11, 1872.—The Calamity at Boston: A feeling of great excitement and interest has prevailed in the city since the issuance of our extra of yesterday, giving intelligence of the great conflagration at Boston. The calamity does not strike so near home as did the Chicago and Wisconsin fires of a year ago, hence there is not that intensity of feeling which drove us half wild during those fatal days in October, 1871. There have yet been no calls for aid and we do not know that contributions will be required, yet we should hold ourselves in readiness to respond to any appeal which may be made. Chicago has already proffered assistance.

Mayor's Proclamation: As much of the insurance in our city is probably rendered valueless in consequence of the terrible conflagration in Boston, all persons are requested to use extra precautions to prevent the origin of a fire in our midst. And our firemen are particularly requested to see that everything connected with the department is in good running order and to hold themselves in readiness to repair promptly to any scene of disaster, should an alarm be given. As a further precaution against the origin and spread of fire in our city, I shall appoint two night policemen, one for each side of the river, until the meeting of the Council on Thursday evening next.

JAMES SUTHERLAND, Mayor.

Young Wax, who worked in Jimmison's store, is out of luck; his job he's lost. "We do not need you any more," said Jimmison; "you are such a frost. You're diligent, that I admit; you try to earn your wage, I know; but many patrons throw a fit when they behold your air of woe. You always look as though your dad had burned a church or robbed a train; your bearing is so gloom and sad that people think you have a pain. The clanging mart is not the place, in these glad optimistic years, for any man with long drawn face, whose eyes are full of unshed tears. A dame comes in to buy a hat, and she says to me: 'The GLOOMY FACE blow herself for silk or fur; she wants a guy, with beaming mug

NOVEMBER 11

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

There will be much that will give you satisfaction in the coming year. In material things you will reap the reward of patient endeavor and among those dearest to you happiness will occur.

Those born today will be preserving and will go steadily forward to material success. Their enjoyment of this will be greatly enhanced if they learn while young that cruelty and passion bring pain and regret, if not controlled; for these are their faults.

Traffic in Chinese Girls.

In Yunnan, China, girls are still sold into slavery. In one year about 300 children from this neighborhood were sold to dealers and carried to the capital in baskets, like poultry. At ordinary times the price for girls is about $1 for each year of their age, but in time of famine children become a drug on the market.

AT THE PLAY

His Pa—The small space between the hats of two women through which a man has to see what he can do of the play.

Tommy (hoastingly)—Geef! a'n't half as bad as I can be.

As to Mending.
It is never too late to mend, unless you are so rich that you can afford a new tire at any time.

Moritol Tonic Digestive has proven a good message to others, why not to you? It acts first upon the stomach, strengthens the digestive organs, creates a healthy appetite, and makes rich red blood. Imparts new life and strength to the entire body.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are any number of persons in the country who make a living through the sale of worthless advertisements, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns.

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

BRANCH OFFICE FOR GAZETTE AT BAKER & SON

For the convenience of its patrons and the public generally, The Gazette has opened a branch office with the J. P. Baker & Son, Drug Store, corner West Milwaukee and Franklin streets.

Copy for classified advertisements orders for papers, subscriptions and matters of this nature, as well as items of news may be left at the Baker Drug Store, and will receive the same prompt attention as if they were sent direct to the office.
